DETAILED ACTION

Preliminary Remarks

1. This Office action responds to the amendment and arguments filed by applicant on December 1, 2003 (Paper N<sup>o</sup> 10) in reply to the Office action mailed August 28, 2003.
2. The amendment of claim 6 by applicant in Paper N<sup>o</sup> 10 is hereby acknowledged.
3. The addition of claims 9-10 by applicant in Paper N<sup>o</sup> 10 is hereby acknowledged.

Election/Restriction

4. Claims 1-5 stand withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a non-elected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in Paper N<sup>o</sup> 7.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ahlstrom et al. (US 4,862,357). See, in particular, Figures 8 and 9.

Ahlstrom et al. disclose a method for facilitating selection of travel itineraries, comprising: selecting one or more travel criteria; defining a traveler profile containing traveler preferences associated with the travel criteria; deriving preference factors including a lowest fare multiplier, an available dates index, a non-stop service index, and an equipment type index for said travel criteria based on the traveler preferences; initiating a query of at least one travel information database for itineraries matching the selected travel criteria using an on-line search engine; calculating a travel value index for each itinerary using a travel value algorithm that subtracts preference factors from, or adds preference factors to, or both, an optimal value of the travel value index depending on the criteria matching itineraries; and, returning only itineraries where the travel value index thereof satisfies a traveler defined threshold.

Regarding claim 7, the method of Ahlstrom et al. further comprises canceling before final completion of the query any itineraries that cannot satisfy the traveler defined threshold.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claims 8-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ahlstrom et al. (US 4,862,357), in view of Bunyan et al. (EP 1,076,307).

Ahlstrom et al. disclose a method for facilitating selection of travel itineraries, as applied above in the rejection of claim 6 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b), but Ahlstrom et al. do not specifically disclose that their travel value algorithm is defined in a manner such that an optimal value for the travel value index is approximately 100 percent. However, Bunyan et al. disclose a similar method, which method indeed includes that the travel value algorithm is defined in a manner such that an optimal value for the travel value index is approximately 100 percent. See, in particular, column 4, lines 39-42.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to have modified the method of Ahlstrom et al. so as to define the travel value algorithm in a manner such that an optimal value for the travel value index would be approximately 100 percent, in accordance with the teachings of Bunyan et al., in order to simplify the presentation of the results and make it easier for the user to discern how different a particular, less-than-optimal result would be from an optimal result.

Regarding claims 9-10, Ahlstrom et al. disclose a method for facilitating selection of travel itineraries, as applied above in the rejection of claim 6 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b), but Ahlstrom et al. do not specifically disclose that the selecting, defining, deriving, and initiating are performed over the Internet using a Web browser, nor that the preferences are modified using a Web browser in real time over the Internet and that then the steps of selecting, defining, deriving, and initiating are repeated using the modified preferences. However, Bunyan et al. disclose a similar method, which method indeed includes that the selecting, defining, deriving, and initiating are performed over the Internet using a Web browser (see column 3, lines 3-4), as well as modifying the preferences using a Web browser in real time over the Internet prior to repeating the steps of selecting, defining, deriving, and initiating, using the modified preferences (see column 3, lines 23-26).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to have modified the method of Ahlstrom et al. so as to use the Internet by means of a Web browser to perform the steps of selecting, defining, deriving, and initiating, as well as to modify the preferences using a Web browser in real time over the Internet, then repeating the steps of selecting, defining, deriving, and initiating using the modified preferences, all in accordance with the teachings of Bunyan et al., in order to reach as broad/widespread of a customer base as possible, and to allow customers as much flexibility as possible.

Response to Arguments

9. Applicant's arguments filed December 1, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

10. Regarding the argument that the method of Ahlstrom et al. fails to disclose returning only itineraries where the travel value index satisfies a traveler defined threshold, the method of Ahlstrom et al. indeed provides for this element of the claims. See, for example, claim 33, which recites, “including the step of determining when a predetermined number of travel itineraries have been created, and discontinuing the creation of additional travel itineraries when the predetermined number has been reached.”

11. Regarding the argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant’s invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., “screening an itinerary after it has been scored” and “stopping a query before final completion for those itineraries that cannot meet the threshold travel value index or score”) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

12. Regarding the argument that Ahlstrom et al. fail to disclose an optimal value index or score, Ahlstrom et al. indeed disclose an optimal value index or score, which Ahlstrom et al. refer to both as the “recommended fare” and the “best overall itinerary.” See, for example, column 12, lines 25-31.

Conclusion

13. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to the disclosure.

14. Applicant's amendment necessitated any new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a).

Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

15. Any inquiry concerning this communication, or earlier communications, should be directed to the examiner, Jerry O'Connor, whose telephone number is (703) 305-1525, and whose facsimile number is (703) 746-3976.
